THE LISTENING POST

● The Listening Post wonders many times why people who have been driving cars for many years do not learn more about those cars than they do. In particular he wonders why he does not learn more, for his ignorance of motor cars is appalling. The simplest mechanical trouble always proves too much for this writer, and it usually takes all of one minute and a half for another person to diagnose and remedy the trouble.

● Consider a bit of trouble I had the other day, and draw your own lesson from it. I was ashamed of myself because I failed to spot the trouble, and it was something I could have remedied myself without undue strain on my mental equipment.

● I was driving down the road with no particular destination in mind, and happened to notice that the water was getting too hot. In other words, the needle swung over into the red field, and I knew that trouble was brewing in the radiator and engine. I thought at first the water was low, and it was. Well, I stopped at a farm house and borrowed about a gallon of water and poured it in. I thought that would remedy the matter and it did for a few minutes. I drove on down the road about a mile, and the needle swung back into normal position. I took my eyes off the dratted thing for a few minutes and rolled on down the highway.

● Then a smell of things hot and scorching began to appear, and glancing at the needle I found it completely in the red field and trying to go on through. I drew up at the roadside and lifted the hood gravely. At least, I can lift a hood and find a motor, and that's about all. Well, I found this motor all right and it was hot and agitated, and I grew hot and agitated as I saw that water had been splashed all over it. The entrance to the radiator, which I had filled only a few minutes before, was as hot and dry as the sands of the desert and the odor therefrom was not pleasant. Something had happened to make away with all the water, and the evidence pointed to the fact that it had been snatched out of the radiator and poured over the top of the motor.

● I had heard of a water pump and still believe that the average motor has one, and I thought it was at fault. But I had no idea where a water pump was, and so I could not accuse it. For quite a while I stood at the roadside and gazed at the motor with reproachful eyes—without getting anywhere at all. Then I remembered that about a mile down the road I had passed a little store and filling station and had observed a man with overalls there.

● I have a child like and abiding faith in men who wear overalls. Experience has taught me that they can and will do things. So I cautiously and carefully cranked up and set out toward this little place, and after several stops to cool off I managed to reach it. The man in overalls came out and I gladly submitted my problem to him. He lifted the hood—at least, he did that no better than I could—and instantly reached down and picked up a water hose that was connected at only one end. "Here's your trouble," he explained, and I blushed hotly when I saw how simple it was. The hose which carries water from the radiator to the heater inside the car had rotted away at the

German People Don't Want War, Says MacKenzie

Associated Press Foreign Correspondent Writes From Munich

Munich, Germany.—This cradle of Chancellor Hitler is hoping eagerly that peace will emerge from Hitler's next meeting with Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain.

The two are expected to meet at Godesberg-on-the-Rhine, probably tomorrow, to continue their deliberations on the fate of Czechoslovakia, begun last Thursday at Berchtesgaden.

Munich, briefly host to Chamberlain on his way to the historic Berchtesgaden conference, is proud but she does not want war and this feeling of her citizens likely is that of a great majority of the people of Germany.

But the people of Munich will tell you flatly that they will fight, if the flag calls, even though in some quarters real anxiety is displayed and people with children have in mind the dangers of aerial bombardment.

A youthful German of excellent education summed up the attitude pretty well in discussing a news broadcast that "Czechs have killed a large number of Sudeten Germans."

He told me "We don't want war, but I don't see how we can go on letting them kill our people like that."

His was a typical viewpoint expressed by city dwellers who read the newspapers and listen to the radio. The peasant of the rural district as yet knows but little of the dispute.

While the city folk are aware that a war may come, and that Germany may have to fight England, France and Soviet Russia as well as Czechoslovakia, there is pretty much a normal atmosphere here.

The economic situation admittedly is not too good and the cost of living is high. But almost everyone has a job and the citizen in ordinary means seems to be getting on quite well. He is enjoying not only necessities but entertainment.

The streets are filled with well-dressed people, many of them pleasure bent. The beer halls do a thriving business in food, drink and entertainment.

I dropped in at the historic Hofbrau House, where Nazidom was born. A huge ground floor of this ancient beer house was jammed with more than 1,000 people. They over-flowed into the paved courtyard where fat, sturdy barrels served as tables.

Most of these collected beneath the time-stained beams were working men, with a liberal scattering of women. One white-collared clerk rubbed elbows with a street

Economic Gain For Czechs Seen If Hitler's Demands Are Met

Washington.—Czechoslovakia will be the best balanced nation economically in Central Europe, some American experts predicted today, if a portion of the Sudeten territory is handed over to Hitler.

Such a partition, they said, would leave the country in comparatively better condition than now. They disputed contentions that partition would be the economic ruin of the little republic, although they acknowledged it would affect some major export products.

The new Czechoslovakia, these experts said, would be a better State homogeneously and much more united.

The heavy problem of unemployment in the Sudetenland would be shifted to Hitler's shoulders. Czechoslovakia's agricultural self-sufficiency would be much improved. It would retain nine-tenths of

Leon Connell Is Burned Last Night

Leon Connell of Union City, formerly of Fulton, received severe burns last night while working in a shoe cleaning plant of Union City. Leon was working with dyeing fluid, containing explosive acid, when a new worker at the plant struck a match and the fluid exploded. Leon picked up the pan of dye and tried to carry it out of the plant, when he received burns from his shoulders to his toes.

He was immediately taken to the Nailling Hospital in Union City and was removed today to the I. C. Hospital in Paducah.

Connell is well known here, having operated the City Service Station here for a few months. He married Miss Edith Elise Carver of this city.

P. T. A. Holds First Meeting

The West Fulton Parent-Teachers Association held the first meeting of the fall yesterday afternoon at Cady Institute with a great number of parents and members of the faculty attending. At this opening meeting a lengthy discussion was held concerning the work to be done by this group throughout the year and from all indications this will be a very successful year for this group, under the leadership of the new president, Mrs. J. C. Hancock.

After the opening of the meeting by Mrs. Hancock, Mrs. Roger Fields, program chairman, was in charge. Mrs. Fields presented Miss Fannie Lee Nix who demonstrated the reading machine which has recently been purchased for the use of the schools. After this very interesting and instructive demonstration Mrs. Fields gave a complete outline of the programs to be presented throughout the year. She also gave a very interesting article which was taken from the "National Parent-Teacher Magazine."

At the end of the program a business session was held and reports were made by the secretary, Mrs. Eldridge Grymes, and the treasurer, Mrs. Claude Linton. A motion was made and carried to have a reception and silver tea on the night of October 13. This event is being planned so that the parents and teachers might get better acquainted in order that their work this year will be more cooperative. For this occasion the high school band will be engaged to furnish the music, and the proceeds will be placed in the fund now being raised to buy uniforms for the band.

After the lengthy business session the meeting was adjourned, to meet again on the third Tuesday of October.

Preceding this meeting the executive board, including all officers and committee chairmen, held a short business meeting.

Meeting At Water Valley Last Nite Is Attended By 84 -- Fine Program

The Community Dinner held in Water Valley last evening by the local Chamber of Commerce was one of the most successful of the entire series, and was attended by 84 men of the two communities. The missionary society of the Methodist Church served a splendid dinner, and the meeting was held in the gymnasium of the Water Valley High School.

Leon Browder, president of the Chamber of Commerce, opened the meeting with an explanation of the reasons for these community dinners. "We are not here to sell you anything," he stated. "We are not here to advertise any business. We are here merely as your friends come to spend the evening with you. We want to know you better and we want you to know us better. That is the sole purpose of this meeting."

Paul Hornbeak was in charge of the program, and Rev. McCaslin, Methodist pastor at Water Valley, gave the welcome address. "When you folks down in Fulton get tired of making money," he remarked, "we will be glad to welcome you to Water Valley for a home, and we guarantee that you will like it. You will find peace and quiet here, and good folks and pleasant friendship."

Rev. J. N. Wilford, local Methodist pastor, made the response in a brief and happy manner. "We bring you nothing but friendship," he stated. "And we ask nothing but friendship in return." Rev. Wilford also pointed out many advances that have been made in recent years in bringing people closer together.

Other talks were made by Mayor Jackson of Water Valley, Porter

Pillow, Fred Roberts and Mr. Montgomery, principal of the Water Valley High School. Joe Davis of Fulton was the closing speaker. "The Swingettes," a talented trio of Water Valley girls, gave several delightful numbers during the evening.

Following is a list of those who attended the meeting:

F. D. R. Confers With Rail Chiefs

Washington.—President Roosevelt today arranged an afternoon conference with executives of three large railroads and representatives of railway labor organizations, to discuss the broad problem of rehabilitating the lines.

White House aids said those present probably would touch on the railway dispute and also go into financing, merging and a system of economies designed to keep the railroads operating.

Those asked to attend were Carl R. Gray, vice chairman of the board of the Union Pacific; M. W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania; Ernest E. Norris, president of Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks; D. B. Robertson, president of Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers; and B. M. Jewell, president of Railroad Employees, of A. P. of L.

More Thinking Of Their Country Than Their Party

White Sulphur Springs, West Va.—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg said in an address here recently he believed that more persons are thinking of their country rather than their party today than ever before since Lincoln pushed a coalition to essential victory in 1864.

He addressed the ninth annual dinner of Miami's Committee of One Hundred.

His discussed ways and means of keeping "the American system of representative democracy ahead of Fascism at the right or Communism at the left, or any American paraphrase of these including 'government by executive decree'—no matter how nobly motivated or how persuasively argued."

Vandenberg said he believed that "like thinkers" must have a political party "even though they have to invent one" so that they can unite on "a common battle line."

"I, for one," he said, "want to save the American system. I want solvent democracy and I want intelligent free enterprise. I want social-mindedness and practical social progress. I want reform which does not create more problems than it solves. I want recovery, American style. So, I believe, do at least 51 per cent of the American electorate."

"It makes no difference what you call the political party that produces these things."

Medic Probe To Continue

Washington.—Attorney General Cummings declared today the American Medical Association's agreement with the Administration's health program would not affect the Department of Justice investigation of alleged monopolistic practices by the District of Columbia Medical Society.

The A. M. A. House of Delegates last week called for Federal and State aid in the care of medically indigent, expansion of existing hospital facilities, stimulation of sickness insurance plans and approval of group hospital association programs.

Hitler Raising Ante Each Day Czechs Ignore His Demands

Berlin.—Every day of delay in solving the Sudeten German-Czechoslovak crisis raises Adolf Hitler's price of settlement, a foreign office spokesman declared today.

"Our Fuehrer is constantly raising the ante," he said as the controlled German press raised a new clamor for the outright partition of Czechoslovakia rather than mere annexation of the Sudeten regions.

It was announced officially tonight that Hitler and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain would meet at Godesberg at 3 p. m. (8 a. m., C. S. T.) Thursday to continue the conversations started last Thursday at Berchtesgaden.

Hitler and his suite arrived at Munich in an automobile caravan late in the afternoon from Berchtesgaden and boarded a special train which left for Godesberg at 11:10 p. m.

Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Undersecretary of State Ernest Weismacker and Interpreter Paul Schmidt were among those accompanying Hitler.

Britain, France Refuse Czech Parley Move

Virtual Ultimatum Is Served; Chamberlain Visits Hitler Thursday

Paris.—Officials in the French foreign ministry disclosed today that France and Britain have refused to accept Czechoslovakia's plan for arbitration of her Sudetenland dispute with Germany and have demanded a flat yes or no answer.

Sources close to the foreign ministry said the new demand the two Western European democracies were making on France's ally was a virtual ultimatum, warning that if Czechoslovakia refused to accept the French-British proposals to cede the Sudeten areas to Adolf Hitler it would be impossible to guarantee the future existence of the country.

The ministers of the two powers were instructed to present the new demand to Prague at once and to demand an immediate reply tonight.

(A source close to the foreign ministry in Prague said that up to 1 a. m. (6 p. m. C. S. T., Tuesday) neither the French nor the British ministry had made any overtures since dispatch of the Czechoslovak government's note in answer to their proposals.)

(Later a Reuters, British news agency, dispatch to London from Prague said, however, that President Eduard Benes received the British Minister Sir Basil Cochrane-Newton and the French Minister Victor Leopold de La Croix at 2:15 a. m., when they urged him to accept the London peace terms as they stand.)

(A meeting of the Czechoslovak inner cabinet was summoned immediately after the envoys left, the dispatch added, and it was expected a full cabinet session would follow.)

At the Quai D'Orsay it was said the new demands upon Czechoslovakia were framed in the evening in a long telephone conversation between the French foreign ministry and the British foreign office.

When a late conference at the French foreign ministry broke up shortly after 1 a. m. (7 p. m., C. S. T., Tuesday), Jules Henry, director in the cabinet of Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, said cryptically: "The latest news received from Prague permits them to hope a satisfactory solution is approaching."

Miss Mary Galvin of Chicago, Ill., is visiting here with her aunt, Mrs. Clint Maxfield, and Mr. Maxfield on West street.

Hitler Raising Ante Each Day Czechs Ignore His Demands

German news agency reports of mounting border clashes between Sudetens and Czechoslovak troop detachments.

While DNB reports from the turbulent frontier poured in Hitler in his Bavarian retreat received the envoys of Hungary and Poland for conferences on the Czechoslovak crisis.

The Hungarian army chief of staff, Marshal Krestes-Fischer, came with Premier Bela Imred and Foreign Minister Klotman Van Kanya to talk with Hitler and Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop "regarding the untenable condition in Czechoslovakia."

An official announcement said the Hungarian leaders told the Reichsfuehrer they would remain "steadfast" in demanding self-determination rights for the 700,000 Hungarians among Czechoslovakia's varied people.

Presence of the army chief of staff gave an ominous character to the German-Hungarian talks which followed a quick flight by Hungary's statesmen from Budapest to Berchtesgaden.

A STRIKING CHANGE

The medical profession appears about to make good on its promise to take the lead in solving the no less varied than widespread problem, rural and urban, of seeing that acute are overlooked or neglected in the care of their health. It has produced clashes of opinions and raised legal and ethical questions as well as questions of procedure; but, in traditional American fashion, plans for local experimentation on a scale that can be managed and studied—social laboratory tests—are already in the preliminary stage all over the country. They range from Florida's virtual medical credit association to the plan adopted by the Wisconsin Medical Society by which the cost of medical care may be included in the family budget.

The unanimous action of the Wisconsin Society's House of Delegates is by far the most radical innovation and, according to The Milwaukee Journal, apparently the most studiously approached of any of the experiments. It comes while a grand jury investigation and a civil suit are pending in the District of Columbia over a voluntary health insurance association and just after the California Supreme Court held that such an incorporated association with its own staff of doctors was invalid practice of medicine by a corporation.

The difference between these enterprises and that proposed by the Wisconsin Medical Society is that in Wisconsin the doctors are taking the initiative to provide complete or partial medical care for individuals or families for a fixed monthly payment under supervision of local medical societies and control of joint professional and lay committees. There is a community aspect to the Wisconsin plan, making it a true social experiment. The Society will appropriate $7,000 to promote it; but it is to be undertaken by city and county organizations.

Nine months' intensive study of conditions throughout the State preceded the action, and the House of Delegates adopted a committee report that was constructively critical of professional services and hospital facilities. The report proposed means for reducing hospital expenses.

The Wisconsin Society also took a hand in hospital insurance projected by the State Hospital Association. The State Society will put up $10,000 and the Milwaukee County Society $5,000 in aid of hospital insurance there as soon as an agreement on terms is reached by the Hospital Association. It is significant that the doctors were more liberal in this respect than the Association, including in the hospital insurance "X-ray, anesthesia, clinical and pathological services." The X-ray and pathological services are excluded from hospital insurance in Kentucky by the State Health Department on the ground that they belong to the practice of medicine. That seems to be a controversial point within the profession; for the Philadelphia Medical Society has agreed that X-ray, at least as far as pictures are concerned, can be given by a hospital. The Wisconsin Medical Society goes farther.

The latter is at odds for the moment with the Hospital Association as to how much control the doctors shall exercise over the insurance organization; but the greater liberality of the doctors and their more exhaustive study of the whole subject, embracing both phases of the health situation, incline press and public to give them untrammelled leadership. Supported by popular confidence, undertaken cautiously and experimentally, this Wisconsin innovation promises to settle by demonstration a great many mooted questions. —Courier Journal.

Richmond Not To Enter Race For Governor

Murray, Ky.—President James H. Richmond of Murray State College candidate for Governor of Kentucky in 1939. A Frankfort correspondent of a Louisville paper said Sunday that Richmond "would be available for Governor next year."

"You may say I have no intentions whatsoever of being a candidate for Governor next year," President Richmond told an interviewer. "I was as surprised as anyone when I saw the account in the paper." The Murray chief said he was "more than happy to be president of Murray State College" and that his work here was "of too satisfying a nature to be disturbed by the uncertainty of a gubernatorial campaign."

President Says He Predicted Primary Results

Washington.—President Roosevelt said at his press conference today that he had predicted the results of Democratic senatorial primaries in Maryland and Georgia.

In each state, a candidate opposed by the President was re-nominated—Senator Millard E. Tydings in Maryland and Senator Walter F. George in Georgia.

The President said that what he had read in the papers checked with what he had prognosticated, adding that he was off 1,000. He did not explain this figure.

He brought a roar of laughter, in which he joined, when he said he never participated in elections between parties. That was in reply to a question on whether he would support Tydings in the general election.

A reporter reminded him that he had said at a recent press conference that he would have no objection to the election of a liberal running on the Republican ticket. The thought with a pitying air, that it might be a wise idea to carry a cork along with me, and next time I found such a condition to insert the cork in the opening, put in more water and go ahead. "That is," he said somewhat scornfully, "if you can tell what the trouble is." I could see from the tone of his voice that he believed he was talking to a microon who should not be allowed out of sight of his keeper.

Rains Held Good For Skin - If It's An Elephant

New York.—A pachydermic note on pulchritude came out of the rain today.

It—the rain—is good for the skin—an elephant's skin, at least. So ruled Magistrate Richard F. McKinley in dismissing cruelty charges against Vernon Walker, 40, an animal tamer.

Walker was cited for parking a 50-year-old circus elephant out in the rain all night.

Walker protested: "An elephant doesn't mind a wet night out. In fact, the rain is good for its skin."

Borah Attacks French Bid For FDR To Speak

Washington — A roar of indignation came from Senator Borah, aging "Lion of Idaho," when he heard today that Leon Blum, ex-premier of France, had suggested that President Roosevelt use his prestige to help solve the European tangle. "What such suggestions really mean," he told reporters, "is that the United States involve itself in European controversies and furnish the money and men which may be necessary in case of war. "It would have been more in harmony with that national honor, so often exemplified in French history, had Mr. Blum given his attention to the fact that France has a solemn treaty with Czechoslovakia to come to her rescue and, instead of advising the United States as to her duty, had advised his own people to courageously stand by their treaty. "France was most instrumental of all nations in creating the little democracy of Czechoslovakia. She later gave her a solemn promise to come to her rescue in case of trouble. That would seem to be the matter to which the ex-premier should give his attention in this critical hour of Czechoslovakia's life. "The people of this country may now look forward to a deluge of propaganda seeking to involve the United States in these controver-

Farmers Think Wild 'What's It' Is 4-Foot Ape

Corry, Penn. — A wild beast that "did resemble an ape" at least from 200 feet—had farmers and townspeople on their toes today. Some folk believed the animal was a bear cub walking on its hind legs. Farmers Frank Ross and Fred Lindstrom, who saw it, maintained "it did resemble an ape" and was about four feet tall.

Rose Marie Chabats, 13, and two smaller children, screaming across fields Sunday when "it started chasing us." Rose Marie's father, Howard Chabats, organized a hunting party of fifty persons, but found no trace of the beast.

sweeper as they lifted enormous steins of beer.

If this crowd had many worries, they were not apparent.

Probably very few of them know all the ramifications of the Nazi-Czechoslovak quarrel. Certainly their views differ from that of the average Englishman, for example.

The German man in the street reads in his newspaper that Sudeten Germans are being persecuted and killed without provocation. He sees photos purporting to show wanton destruction of property.

The press cites this and then carries on the thesis of Chancellor Hitler, that the Berlin government has every right to intervene to protect German blood.

WPA Denies Heads Tried To Coerce Vote For Barkley

Washington.—The WPA denied today that its officials engaged in concerted effort to coerce relief workers into the camp of Senator Barkley, administration leader, during the recent primary fight in Kentucky.

Administrator Harry Hopkins said a WPA inquiry substantiated only one charge of "improper political activity" out of a list of 15 cited recently by the Senate campaign investigating committee.

Hopkins asserted that James B. Buddie, director of WPA District Number 1, did compile lists of WPA workers who were registered voters and did make them available to county campaign chairmen in his district. Steps have been taken to remove Buddie, the administrator said.

Buddie has a fine record

JULIET SHELBY TALKS ON BEAUTY

NOWADAYS your neck just has to be correctly proportioned. The long, bony neck of the past few years would sometimes hide a neck that left something to be desired, and it did successfully conceal your neckline from every angle except the front. Now, with hair on the upswing and throats exposed from all sides, you can't have a fat neck or a thin, sawn-off one. Fortunately, however, necks will and do respond quickly to the proper attention. So if you are not pleased with your neckline, then try these correctives. If you are worried about a fat neck use a mineral oil cream instead of a scorching cream when massaging it. Before you start the massage cleanse your neck thoroughly and then put some of the cream on the palms of your hands and stroke briskly downward from the chin to the base of your throat. Cupping your hands let the movements be firm and molding. For that covager's hump, knead the back of the neck vigorously. Do this for at least three minutes the first time, and do it for longer periods, as your neck becomes accustomed to the kneading. Always remember to hold your head high, this will help you to get rid of the hump. Perhaps you want to mould a sawn-off throat and a hollow neck. After cleansing your neck, put some of your favorite rich lubricating cream on the palms of your hands and apply it just as we described for the fat neck. Leave the cream on and then go into your exercises, because the thin neck needs exercise as well as massage. First breathe in through one nostril by pressing a finger against the other; this causes the throat muscles to distend while inhaling. Hold your breath for a second; then change your finger to the other side of your nose and exhale through the opposite nostril. Alternate and repeat this ten times. Second, stand before a mirror and take a deep breath—then hold your nostrils between thumb and forefinger, while holding your throat with the other hand. Hold your breath a second, and then try to puff the air out through the nostrils several times so that you can feel your throat muscles swell. Be careful not to exhale too vigorously. Exhale and repeat ten times. Third, place your hands on your forehead with the elbows held up to hand level, and shoulders well back. Now force your head forward and down while resisting this movement as hard as you can with the forearms. If you do this correctly you should feel the muscles of the chin and front of the throat tensing. Last of all, do the neck muscle stretching. With your face forward, bend your head slowly to the left, keeping the chin high, pulling hard on the muscles of the right side of the neck. Repeat to the right, pulling on the left side muscles. Turn the neck, but do not raise the shoulder to meet the head. Repeat this ten times. These little routines will really help mould your neck to lovely lines, so you'll be proud to be exposed around the throat.

and since no repetition of his act need be feared, Hopkins continued, "it does not seem to me that his discharge is warranted."

Hopkins made his statements in a letter to Senator Sheppard (R-Tex.), chairman of the Senate committee. Specifically, it had been alleged that workers were canvassed as to their political affiliation and preference among candidates and approached by foremen to sign papers pledging support of Senator Barkley; that Barkley buttons were distributed to workers and that "men known to hold views contrary to Candidate Barkley were discharged."

French-Czech Treaties Have Loopholes

France is bound by two treaties to help Czechoslovakia against invasion. But one wraps its military punch in a heavily padded glove and a big "it" hedges the other. Soviet Russia has no obligation toward Czechoslovakia unless France goes to her help first.

Great Britain steadfastly has refused to commit herself definitely. The first of France's treaty promises is a pact drawn in Paris in 1924 saying that France and Czechoslovakia will "adopt a common attitude and agree on measures to take" in the event of certain things happening.

A restoration of the Hohenzollerns in Germany was one of those things.

The second was signed at Locarno in 1925. It provides that France will give immediate aid to Czechoslovakia "acting in application of Article 16 of the Covenant of the League of Nations" in the event of an "unprovoked attack."

Article 16 says, in effect, that nations resorting to war after refusing to talk things over with an arbitrator are automatically guilty of an act of war against other League members. But it also says it is the duty of the League council to decide what measures should be used to protect Czechoslovakia.

That is one loophole. The meaning of the word "unprovoked" is another. The consensus in French newspapers is that France would be absolved if the Prague Government should "provoke" Germany by rejecting the Franco-British ad-

11 Killed In Train Crash

Niland, Calif.—Railroad officials blamed a brakeman's mistake tonight for a collision of two Southern Pacific passenger trains that killed eleven persons and injured more than 100 others early today.

C. F. Donnat, Southern Pacific superintendent, said the wreck was caused by the sudden, unexplainable decision of Eric Leonard Jacobson, veteran brakeman, to throw a switch as the Argonaut, New Orleans-to-Los Angeles flier, sped toward a siding where the Chicago-bound Californian, tourist train from Los Angeles, was waiting.

The Argonaut engineer saw the block signal arm rise, a red light flash. Brakes screeched, but the big locomotive veered sharply and plunged into the tourist train.

Rule Violated Donnat said Jacobson was dazed and hysterical from the effect of a decision he could not explain. An important rule of the service, the superintendent said, is that when a train is on a siding, waiting for another to pass on single main line tracks, the brakeman must not approach nearer than twenty feet from the switch stand.

Roosevelt Bans Questions On News Of Crisis

Washington — President Roosevelt told reporters today there was no news on the European situation. He added that he knew news—men had been told to ask certain interpretative and provocative questions, but that he thought in the present situation it was best for them to go along with him and not ask the questions.

He did say, however, in reply to questions, that he had not discussed the Neutrality Act or the Johnson Act (barring the floating of loans in this country by war debt defaulters) with Chairman McReynolds of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Nor, he said, had he talked over the possibility of a special session of Congress.

Return Asked Of Gold Bricks Taken By U. S.

Buffalo, N. Y. — An Italian woman and her son awaited word from the Treasury Department today on an appeal for the return of their life savings, two gold bricks valued at $1,250, which were seized by the Government.

A Federal Judge yesterday ordered the gold bricks belonging to Mrs. Virginia Venturoli and her son, Albert, 21, forfeited because Mrs. Venturoli failed to declare them to customs officials when she returned from a trip to Italy.

Mrs. Venturoli said she had her money converted into gold bricks so she could take it out of Italy and she didn't know she had to declare the gold to U. S. customs.

United States Attorney George L. Brobe described the case as "pitiful." He said the law made Government seizure mandatory, but he had forwarded Mrs. Venturoli's appeal to Washington.

See America First... Last... and Always

Yes, see America for what it really is—better than a promised land.

To our forefathers it was just a plain land of promise with no trimmings. The merciless frontier drove hard bargains . . . demanded privations and daring in exchange for day-to-day existence. But they were thankful and confident.

Today vast oceans still guard our freedom. We have the Earth's greatest storehouse of natural resources. Comforts and conveniences abound. Best of all, we see every promise of a future more generous still. For America? Yes! But especially for all those with the spirit of America's pioneers.
